What is Crisis Stabilization Services?

Crisis Stabilization Services (CSS) is a safe place to begin your recovery journey with high quality care. We surround you with compassionate behavioral health specialists and medical staff who specialize in withdrawal management and stabilization support.

What sets North Range’s Crisis Stabilization apart from others?

CSS provides local, wrap-around care you can trust.

We were the first Acute Treatment Center in Colorado and have supported Weld County residents for decades.

Our withdrawal management program, also known as Island Grove or detox, has a proud history of helping Weld County residents find recovery from substance use disorder.

Our facility is a safe, affordable, and local alternative to a hospital stay, which means you can begin crisis stabilization or withdrawal management treatment while remaining close to home.

Upon completing treatment at CSS, North Range clients also have access to a continuum of care, that reaches beyond what you can find elsewhere in Colorado. From residential, to intensive outpatient, to individual and group outpatient support, there is a place for everyone in the North Range network.

Can I afford the care at CSS?

We’re especially proud to offer quality care that isn’t out of financial reach. Our affordable daily rates are lower than typical hospital and residential stays for withdrawal management care. We also offer a sliding fee scale for individuals who are under-insured. We offer a high-quality level of withdrawal management care at an affordable price, making it a step toward recovery that you can afford.
What about safety?

Your personal safety is our number one priority. We offer onsite medical support to help with the stabilization or withdrawal management (detox) processes. Should the need for support become more acute, our established relationships with local hospitals allow for a seamless and stress-free transfer.

I’ve heard about something called MAT (Medication Assisted Therapy). What is this and how does it fit into your withdrawal management services?

Over the years, we’ve learned so much about how the brain works and how it’s affected by trauma and substance use disorder. North Range Behavioral Health can provide Medication Assisted Therapy (MAT) – an evidence-based treatment for withdrawal management that lowers the risk of overdose and is considered a best practice for many withdrawal scenarios.

Can you tell me about the Acute Treatment Unit?

Comprehensive monitoring support from behavioral health specialists and medical staff is at the heart of our acute treatment model. The ATU’s level of service also makes it a viable alternative for individuals on a hold who are needing 24/7 support.

What is a social detox model?

Our clinical, short-term residential social detox model helps people begin withdrawal management in a safe, nurturing environment that’s close to home. We are certified by the American Society of Addiction Medicine, so you can feel confident about the quality of care you are receiving.
